Theme of the Seminar

Entrepreneurship Development can be a good source of innovation and value creation for economies, organisations and people. So, unleashing of entrepreneurial laxity is must for economic development of a country. It helps in creation of employment opportunities and personal development. Entrepreneurship is not only related to the establishing a new business but also under entrepreneurship, different meaningful problems can be identified and their novel solutions may be devised. The biggest benefit of entrepreneurship development is it improves the skill and knowledge of entrepreneurs and enhance their ability to develop, manage and organize business by considering the potential risks involved like business failure, unexpected obstacles, financial insecurity and long working hours. Keeping the drawbacks aside, entrepreneurship contributes in the economic development by creating capital for the country, by generating employment opportunities, by balanced regional development, by mobilization of resources and by improving the standard of living of the society etc. Indian Government has taken different initiatives to motivate the new business ideas of Indian entrepreneurs such as Startup India, Standup India etc.
